CARA collects enrollment data on every Catholic ministry formation program that prepares men and women for ministry in the U.S. Church as priests, deacons, and lay ecclesial ministers. This statistical overview is published annually and a complete directory listing the names, addresses, and other pertinent information on each program is published every other year.

CARA was founded by Catholic leaders in 1964 to put social science research tools at the service of the Catholic Church in the United States.

Catholic Ministry Formation Enrollment: Statistical Overview for 2015-2016

Priestly Formation

During academic year 2015-2016, enrollment in the post-baccalaureate level of priestly formation totaled 3,520, a decrease of 4 percent (130 seminarians) from last year’s theologate enrollment of 3,650. Of these, 2,708 (77 percent) were candidates for dioceses and 812 (23 percent) were from religious orders. Diocesan enrollment decreased by 91 seminarians from last year’s total and religious enrollment decreased by 39 seminarians. These totals include pre-theology students who may have undergraduate degrees in another academic discipline but need additional work in philosophy, theology, or formation to qualify for theologate enrollment. The number of seminarians enrolled in theologates this year is down slightly from recent years but still greater than the numbers reported in the 1990s and early 2000s. The number of seminarians enrolled in pre-theology is about the same as in the recent past, with 732 enrolled in pre-theology this year, which make up 21 percent of all theology-level students.

This year’s college seminary enrollment of 1,353 seminarians also reflects a decrease of 4 percent, down 63 seminarians from last year’s total of 1,416. High school seminary enrollment decreased by 3 percent (12 seminarians) from last year and is now at 376 seminarians in the three remaining high school seminary programs operating in the United States.

Beginning with the 1967-1968 academic year, CARA has collected enrollment data for priesthood formation programs at the theologate, college, and high school levels in the United States. CARA also collects data about U.S. seminarians from the only priesthood formation program abroad that is now sponsored by the hierarchy of the United States – the Pontifical North American College in Rome.¹ Another program located outside the United States that is included in these counts is Seminario Hispano de Santa Maria de Guadalupe in Mexico City. This seminary was established in 2000 by the Archdiocese of Mexico and accepts Hispanic students from dioceses in the United States who have a particular ministry to Hispanic Catholics in the United States.

The data are gathered in the fall of each year. The total number of seminarians enrolled in these programs, shown in the table above and on the previous page, includes pre-theology students studying at theologates, college seminaries, and other sites.

Pre-Theology

Since 1994, CARA has counted pre-theology students studying at theologates, college seminaries, and other sites in its totals of theology-level seminarians. The graph below shows the trend in pre-theology students since 1980, the first year that CARA began monitoring this group. In more recent years, as enrollment in college seminaries declined and as more men applied for seminary with a college degree in hand, the need for pre-theology programs has increased. These programs provide the philosophical and theological preparation necessary to pursue graduate-level theology. The most recent documents regarding priestly formation now recommend two years of pre-theologate formation for those who did not complete college seminary.²

In academic year 2015-2016, the 732 seminarians enrolled in pre-theology make up just over a fifth (21 percent) of all theology-level seminarians, a decrease of 56 seminarians from last year but approximately the same percentage of overall theologate enrollment over the past decade.

The table on the next page displays the total number of seminarians enrolled in pre-theology and compares that figure to the total theologate enrollment as a percentage of theologate students.

² Paragraph 60 of the Program of Priestly Formation, fifth edition, (Washington, DC: USCCB, 2006) reads: “If a person has no previous preparation in a formation program, then the pre-theology program should extend over a two-year calendar period. Pre-theology programs are designed to address all four pillars of formation, not simply to meet academic requirements.”

Theologate Profile

The table on the next page lists the 41 theologates that prepare seminarians for the priesthood in the United States. For institutions that have both theology- and college-level programs, enrollment figures for pre-theology seminarians are reported the way the institution reports them. For example, Holy Apostles College and Seminary in Cromwell, CT, treats its pre-theology seminarians as part of the theologate division, and so these 18 students are counted in its theologate enrollment figure of 70. The pre-theology program at St. Charles Borromeo Seminary in Philadelphia is administered under the college division, so its pre-theology students are included with its college enrollment rather than in its theologate enrollment figure of 63. However, all pre-theology students are included in the CARA totals for theology-level enrollment provided elsewhere in this report. Thus, the total theology enrollment of 3,520 reported earlier includes 3,179 enrolled in theologates (2,788 in theology and 391 in pre-theology), and an additional 341 in pre-theology who are enrolled in college seminaries.

Diocesan priesthood candidates typically live at the seminary and get their education and priestly formation at the theologate they attend.³ For 2015-2016, the average tuition was $20,422, an increase of $1,291 from 2014-2015. The average room and board for the 33 programs that reported room and board separately was $12,516, an increase of $1,151 from 2014-2015. Pope St. John XXIII National Seminary and Seminario Hispano de Santa Maria de Guadalupe are excluded from these calculations since they have a single fee that covers the costs of both tuition and room and board. Seminarians at Oblate School of Theology reside at Assumption Seminary. The other programs that do not report room and board are for religious priesthood candidates, who usually live in a house sponsored by their order and attend a nearby theologate for academic training.

CARA identified a total of 83 residences that currently house seminarians; 53 of these residences have seminarians that are studying at theologates. Apart from the exceptions listed below, all of the theology-level priesthood candidates at these residences are enrolled in one of the theologate programs listed in the 2015-2016 theologate profile table. The exceptions are nine Trappists in study at the Abbey of New Clairvaux, seven Norbertines in study at St. Michael's Abbey, six Capuchins in study at the Capuchin Novitiate and Postulancy, and five seminarians from religious institutes studying at theologates outside the United States and therefore not included in the 41 theologates counted here.

Theologates with the Highest Enrollment

The ten theologates with enrollment of at least 100 account for 1,456 or 46 percent of the 3,179 seminarians reported by theologates in 2015-2016. The table below lists these institutions in terms of enrollment of diocesan or religious priesthood candidates. New to the list this year are St. Vincent de Paul Regional Seminary in Florida and St. John’s Seminary School of Theology in California.

Theologates by Size of Enrollment

The figure at right groups the theologates according to their reported enrollment for the 2015-2016 academic year. One in four theologates (10 of the 41 theologates) are relatively large, enrolling 100 or more seminarians. About half (19 of the 41 theologates) have between 50 and 99 seminarians enrolled, and three in ten (12 in all) have fewer than 50 seminarians enrolled this year.

Canonical Degree-Granting Theologates

Some theologates, as well as some other universities and academic departments, have special approval of the Congregation for Catholic Education and operate under special norms determined by the Holy See. These norms include the requirement that faculty members meet particular qualifications, including an upper-level canonical degree, and that the President, Rector, or Dean be appointed or confirmed by the Holy See. These faculties are entrusted with “the task of preparing with special care students for the priestly ministry, for teaching the sacred sciences, and for the more arduous tasks of the apostolate.”⁴ The table below displays the six ecclesiastical faculties of theology in the United States, the year they were established, and the number of faculty in each.

Ecclesiastical Faculties of Theology in the United States, 2015-2016
Theologate	Year Established	Ecclesiastical Faculty
		Full-time	Part-time

CARA identified 14 theologates that offer a canonical degree in theology to seminarians. Six of these institutions grant canonical degrees under the authority of their own ecclesiastical faculty, as shown in the table above, and the other eight grant their canonical degrees through affiliation or aggregation to the ecclesiastical faculty at another institution.

- The Pontifical North American College in Rome was established in 1859. Students enrolled there earn canonical degrees from the Pontifical Gregorian University and the Pontifical University of St. Thomas Aquinas (the Angelicum) in Rome.
- The Pontifical College Josephinum in Columbus, OH, has been affiliated to the Pontifical Lateran University in Rome since 2005.
- Mount Angel Seminary in St. Benedict, OR, established in 1889, is affiliated to the Pontifical Athenaeum of St. Anselm in Rome.

⁴ Apostolic Constitution Sapientia Christiana, April 29, 1979, Foreword III.

- St. Joseph’s Seminary in Yonkers, NY, has been affiliated to the Angelicum in Rome since 1994.
- Sacred Heart Major Seminary in Detroit, MI, is affiliated to the Angelicum in Rome since 2004, to grant both the S.T.B. and S.T.L. degrees.
- St. Patrick Seminary in Menlo Park, CA, has been affiliated to the ecclesiastical faculty at St. Mary’s Seminary and University in Baltimore, MD, since 1997.
- St. Vincent Seminary in Latrobe, PA, has been affiliated to the Dominican House of Studies in Washington, DC, since 2000.
- St. John Vianney Theological Seminary in Denver, CO, has been affiliated to the Pontifical Lateran University in Rome since 2001.

In addition to the seminarian numbers listed above, these institutions report another 176 priests and 40 lay persons or deacons enrolled in their canonical degree programs. They anticipate awarding canonical degrees to 66 priests and 12 lay persons or deacons in 2016.

Theologate Enrollment by Year of Study for the Priesthood

The accompanying table shows enrollment in theologates by levels of study. The category “All Others” in the figure includes theologate students who are reported to be on their pastoral year, on leave of absence, or in other special circumstances.

Pre-Theology Enrollment

Pre-theology seminarians are more likely to be enrolled in theologates than at other formation sites designed for college-level seminarians. Theologates report 391 seminarians enrolled in pre-theology. Free-standing and collaborative college seminaries report 176 enrolled in pre-theology, while other seminary residences count 165 in pre-theology outside the seminary system.

In addition to the seminarians previously reported in the table on seminary enrollment, there are also five seminarians from religious institutes in an overseas training program as well as six Capuchins, seven Norbertines, and nine Trappists studying at their respective abbeys. These 27 seminarians are not included in the total on page three.

Retention of Seminarians in Theology

Although individual exceptions occur, the typical pattern for seminarians entering their first year of theology is to have an undergraduate degree from a college seminary or to have completed a pre-theology program. The table below highlights the 2015-2016 class of seminarians through their four years in theology, that is, those who began theologate studies in 2012-2013 and who are completing their theologate studies in 2015-2016. Each class of seminarians in theology can also be compared to its corresponding cohort in the preceding academic year by following the same diagonal.

	Year of Study in Theology				Retention Rate
	First Year	Second Year	Third Year	Fourth Year
1999-2000	681	687	582	625
2000-2001	704	606	573	570
2001-2002	716	670	595	536
2002-2003	738	625	543	576	85%
2003-2004	727	614	512	509	72%
2004-2005	691	633	542	519	72%
2005-2006	631	617	573	495	67%
2006-2007	656	566	546	555	76%
2007-2008	622	607	541	535	77%
2008-2009	709	546	524	500	79%
2009-2010	646	600	568	497	76%
2010-2011	725	626	549	535	86%
2011-2012	768	686	542	520	73%
2012-2013	739	706	571	513	79%
2013-2014	704	653	596	530	73%
2014-2015	661	654	591	561	73%
2015-2016	695	574	610	547	74%

Of the 739 seminarians who began theologate study in 2012, 547 are completing their fourth year in 2016. Thus, the retention rate for the Class of 2016 throughout their four years of theologate study is expected to be 74 percent, about the same as that reported for the last two years and a little lower than the Class of 2013's rate. The average retention rate over ten years for those who began theology from 2006-2007 to 2015-2016 was 77 percent.

Age Distribution of Theologate Students

The age distribution for theologate students preparing for the priesthood is shown at left. Over half of all seminarians enrolled in theologates (57 percent) are under age 30 and another fifth (21 percent) are in their early thirties. One in ten (10 percent), are between 35 and 39. Just over one in ten (12 percent) are age 40 and above. Thus, about a fifth of seminarians enrolled in theologates (22 percent) are age 35 or older. There are slightly more seminarians in the younger categories of age and slightly fewer in the older categories than what was reported last year by theologates.

Racial and Ethnic Backgrounds of Theologate Students

Two in three priesthood candidates enrolled in the theologates (65 percent) are white/Anglo/Caucasian. One in seven (14 percent) is Hispanic/Latino, 10 percent are Asian/Pacific Islander, and 4 percent are black/African American. Another 7 percent are listed as “other,” which includes Native Americans, multi-racial, and international students that do not identify with these racial and ethnic categories.

The racial and ethnic distribution of theologate students is gradually becoming more diverse. In 1993, the first year CARA collected racial and ethnic data, 79 percent of theologate seminarians were white/Anglo/Caucasian, 11 percent were Hispanic/Latino, 8 percent were Asian/Pacific Islander, and 2 percent were black/African American. The white/Anglo/Caucasian percent declined from 79 percent to 65 percent during the past 23 years.

Foreign-born Seminarians in Theologates

In 2015-2016, programs report a total of 421 seminarians (15 percent of seminarians in theologates) are from countries other than the United States. This is a decrease of 47 percent from the 801 foreign-born seminarians reported last year. In 2009-2010, foreign-born seminarians were 30 percent of all seminarians in theology, but the proportion has been dropping since that time. On average, 25 percent of seminarians came from other countries between 2005-2006 and 2015-2016.

In all, 55 foreign countries are represented by these seminarians. The greatest numbers are from Mexico (77 seminarians), Vietnam (73), Colombia (46), the Philippines (26), Nigeria (15), South Korea (13), Poland (12), and Kenya (12).

Most of these seminarians, 56 percent, are preparing to be ordained for a diocese in the United States. Another 14 percent of foreign-born seminarians are studying for a diocese outside the United States. Seminarians from religious orders, 127 in all, comprise the remaining 30 percent of these foreign-born seminarians. Breaking down that 30 percent, seminarians studying for a U.S.-based religious order account for 18 percent of all foreign-born seminarians, while another 12 percent are studying for a religious order based outside the United States.

College Seminaries

In 2015-2016, there were 1,353 seminarians enrolled in 29 college-level priesthood formation programs or in seminary residence programs in religious institutes. This number does not include the 176 pre-theology students in college seminary programs, since pre-theology students are calculated in the theology-level counts. College-level priesthood formation programs may be divided into three categories: free-standing seminaries (697 seminarians), collaborative seminaries (481), and seminary residence programs (175).

Free-Standing College Seminaries

Free-standing college seminaries are accredited in their own right to grant a college degree. They combine all aspects of a seminary program in one institution. There are 13 such institutions reporting enrollment for the 2015-2016 academic year. The 697 seminarians enrolled at the college level in these institutions is an increase of 33 seminarians (5 percent) from the 664 seminarians reported last year.

- Seven of the free-standing college seminaries are sponsored by a diocese or archdiocese. Three of these diocesan institutions have a combined college and theologate seminary program. These institutions include Sacred Heart Major Seminary, College of Liberal Arts, in Detroit, MI, St. Charles Borromeo Seminary in Philadelphia, PA and the Seminario Hispano de Santa Maria de Guadalupe, Philosophy Division, in Mexico City.

- There are five religious-sponsored programs, of which three are Benedictine – Conception Seminary College in Conception, MO; Mount Angel Seminary College in St. Benedict, OR; and Saint Joseph Seminary College in St. Benedict, LA. The other two free-standing college seminaries sponsored by religious orders are Divine Word College Seminary in Epworth, IA, and Holy Apostles College and Seminary in Cromwell, CT.
- The Pontifical College Josephinum, in Columbus, OH, which also has both a free-standing college and a theologate, is not sponsored directly by either a diocese or a religious order but is operated instead by an independent board of trustees.

Collaborative College Seminaries

Collaborative programs usually have a formal relationship with an accredited undergraduate program at a Catholic college or university. They tend to be long-established programs, are typically diocesan-administered, and in many cases had originally been separate, stand-alone programs. This directory includes 16 programs in the category of collaborative college seminaries. The 481 seminarians enrolled at the college level in these programs is 11 percent below the 538 seminarians reported last year.

Other College Level Formation Programs

Other college seminary residences generally have much smaller numbers of students than free-standing or collaborative college seminaries. They tend to be conducted by religious institutes for their candidates completing college degrees. CARA has identified 34 college-level programs that fit this model. Eleven of these house only college-level candidates; the other 23 currently function as joint college and theology residences. In 2015–2016, the combined number of priesthood candidates pursuing college-level studies in these residences was 175, excluding pre-theology. Another 165 were enrolled in pre-theology course work. In both cases, these seminarians were not enrolled in programs reported here as theologates, free-standing colleges, or collaborative colleges, and therefore are not double-counted when added to the enrollment totals for these institutions.

College Retention Rate

In addition to a broad liberal arts foundation, college seminaries prepare men with the required philosophy coursework necessary for entrance to a theologate. Nevertheless, these four years are intended to be a period of discernment. The table below highlights the 2015-2016 class through their four years in college seminary; that is, those who entered in 2012-2013 and who are completing their college studies in 2015-2016. Each class of college seminarians can also be compared to its corresponding cohort in the preceding academic year by following the same diagonal.

	Retention of Seminarians in College				Retention Rate
	Year of Study in College
	First Year	Second Year	Third Year	Fourth Year
2005-2006	281	241	278	257
2006-2007	335	257	242	250
2007-2008	346	302	273	217
2008-2009	322	378	275	208	74%
2009-2010	369	310	302	243	73%
2010-2011	379	344	243	260	75%
2011-2012	374	329	266	228	71%
2012-2013	376	379	273	242	66%
2013-2014	343	307	275	250	66%
2014-2015	308	357	279	241	64%
2015-2106	293	330	271	245	65%

Of the 376 seminarians who began college seminary in 2012, 245 are completing their fourth year in 2016. Thus, the retention rate for the Class of 2016 throughout their four years of college seminary is expected to be 65 percent, on par with that reported for the last three years. The average retention rate across all eight four-year cohorts for those who began college seminary from 2005-2006 to 2015-2016 was 69 percent.

Age Distribution of College Seminarians

The age distribution of priesthood candidates at college seminaries largely mirrors the traditional ages of college enrollment, although one in five college seminarians are men in their late twenties and above. This is due in part to the pre-theology programs at many of these seminaries that prepare men who already have undergraduate degrees in other fields.

The figure at right depicts the age distribution of seminarians enrolled in free-standing or collaborative college seminaries during the 2015–2016 academic year. More than half of these seminarians (53 percent) are the typical college age of 21 or below. Not quite three in ten are between the ages of 22 and 25 and a fifth are older than 25.

Racial and Ethnic Backgrounds of College Seminarians

Seven in ten college seminarians (70 percent) are white/Anglo/Caucasian, compared to about two in three theologate seminarians who are white/Anglo/Caucasian. Hispanics/Latinos comprise a fifth of the seminarians at college seminaries during the 2015-2016 academic year. Asians/Pacific Islanders and blacks/African Americans make up another 10 percent. Other racial/ethnic categories, including Native Americans and multi-racial seminarians, make up the other 1 percent of seminarians.

High School Seminaries

In 1967, there were 36 diocesan and 86 religious high school seminaries as well as 17 junior college seminaries, 38 combined high school and junior college seminaries, and a few others that also provided a high school education in a seminary context. Historically, seminaries at this entry level provided important training in Latin, Greek, and other subjects formerly considered essential for advanced seminary studies. Today, only three active high school seminary programs remain, with a combined enrollment of 376 students. These programs are all independent, free-standing institutions. Only one of the three is diocesan (Cathedral Preparatory Seminary in Elmhurst, NY) and the other two are sponsored by a religious institute. One is sponsored by the Order of Friars Minor, Capuchin, and the other is sponsored by the Legionaries of Christ.

The diocesan high school seminary (Cathedral Preparatory Seminary in Elmhurst, NY) does not have a residential program. The two religious high school seminaries do have residential programs. Room and board at the two seminaries with separate charges for a residential program averages $6,375 and tuition across the three seminaries averages $7,917. Average tuition increased by $402, a 5 percent increase over that reported in 2014-2015.

Diaconate Formation

Trends

The number of permanent deacons in the United States has grown steadily since the restoration of this ministry in the years following the Second Vatican Council. The accompanying graph illustrates this increase over 45 years to a total of 18,082 permanent deacons, as reported in The Official Catholic Directory in 2015.⁵ The number of permanent deacons has increased by approximately 3 percent per year over each of the last ten years.

CARA completed the first study of diaconate formation programs in 1996–1997 and updated the information at the beginning of each academic year since then. This year, CARA obtained enrollment data from 165 of 176 identified diaconate formation programs.

Active diaconate formation programs currently exist in all 50 states and in the District of Columbia. Active programs are found in 164⁶ of the 195 dioceses and eparchies whose bishops belong to the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB). Eleven directors report that the program is on hold at this time or currently operated through another diocese, most often because of a change in bishops. Several other programs have been reactivated or newly formed within the last few years; others have been redesigned in light of the new norms for diaconate formation.⁷

⁵ This number includes only the 195 dioceses and eparchies whose bishops belong to the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops.

⁶ The Archdiocese of Chicago operates two administratively separate diaconate formation programs – one in English and one in Spanish.

⁷ National Directory for the Formation, Ministry and Life of Permanent Deacons in the United States, (Washington, DC: USCCB, 2005).

Thirty of the 165 responding programs report no deacon candidates for the 2015-2016 academic year, although 15 of those programs report that they have aspirants – men who are preparing to become deacon candidates.

*CARA first asked programs to report aspirants in 2002-2003.

The 135 diaconate formation programs that have candidates in formation during the 2015–2016 academic year report 2,297 candidates. This number is up 11 percent from the 2,051 deacon candidates reported by 166 programs in 2014-2015. In addition, 75 programs, including 15 programs that have no current deacon candidates, reported another 1,082 aspirants – men who are in a period of discernment prior to entering diaconate formation. The number of aspirants reported is similar to the number reported in 2012-2013 and reflects the cyclic pattern found in many diaconate formation programs, which often accumulate aspirants for several years and then create a candidacy class who go through formation together.

Active Programs

Out of 165 active diaconate formation programs, all of them reported the year that their program was organized. The average year of organization was 1984. The figure at right shows the proportion of all diaconate formation programs in the United States that were created in each decade. Half of all currently active programs were established in the 1970s and 4 percent were established in the 1960s. About a quarter of active programs were established in the 1980s or 1990s and a fifth were organized since 2000.⁸

Characteristics of Diaconate Formation Programs

Diaconate formation programs vary considerably according to local needs and situations. Fifteen dioceses or eparchies include deacon candidates from other dioceses or eparchies in their program, often to accommodate dioceses that are in the process of reorganizing or creating a new diaconate formation program.

A total of 29 programs offer formation in both Spanish and English, including the Archdiocese of Chicago, which has an administratively separate diaconate formation program in Spanish. Some programs provide separate English-language and Spanish-language tracks within the same program and others conduct some of their classes in Spanish. A few provide instruction in other languages or train candidates to serve particular ethnic or cultural groups. The Rural Deacon program in the Diocese of Fairbanks conducts its program in English and Yupik and the Ukrainian Catholic Diocese of Stamford conducts its program in English and Ukrainian.

Diaconate formation programs differ in their requirements for admission, program duration and number of required courses, the frequency with which candidates meet, and tuition and fees. Average tuition per academic year among the 110 programs that report a charge for tuition is $2,064 and the other fees reported by 77 programs average $230. Typical admission requirements include a period of discernment, recommendation by the candidate's pastor, the support of the candidate's wife, letters of reference, psychological testing, and multiple interviews. Almost nine in ten programs report requiring either the MMPI-1 or MMPI-2 for admission and around half require the Deacon Perceiver and/or a clinical interview. Although many programs do not specify academic prerequisites, some stipulate a high school/equivalency diploma or college degree. Three in ten programs report that deacon candidates must complete a lay ministry formation program as a prerequisite for diaconate formation. In more than a third of cases, this lay ministry formation is included as a part of the diaconate formation program.

⁸ Following the recommendations of the Second Vatican Council, the permanent diaconate was re-established on June 18, 1967, by the Apostolic Letter Sacrum Diaconatus Ordinem. It was approved for the United States on August 30, 1968, the year in which the first four programs were established.

Deacon candidates typically meet one or two evenings or weekends in a month over the course of four to six years, for an average of 152 hours annually. Program length ranges from three years to six years, with an average length of 4.5 years. Shorter programs typically stipulate the prior completion of a ministry formation program. Program costs are often shared by participants, parishes, and dioceses, with the largest share typically paid by the diocese (on average, 66 percent).

The table above displays the largest diaconate formation programs, which enroll slightly less than a third of deacon candidates. In total, these 14 programs enroll 683 deacon candidates and have another 177 aspirants in discernment. These 14 programs expect to ordain 188 deacons (33 percent of all deacon ordinations expected in 2016).

Profile of Diaconate Candidates

Age Distribution and Marital Status

As the figure at right illustrates, three in four candidates (75 percent) for the permanent diaconate are in their forties and fifties. Just 4 percent are under age 40 and about one in five (21 percent) is age 60 or older. According to Canon Law, married deacon candidates must be 35 or older to be ordained.

The vast majority of candidates, 95 percent, are married men. Three percent are single, never married, and 2 percent are widowed or divorced.

Racial and Ethnic Background

Seven in ten deacon candidates (71 percent) are white/Anglo/Caucasian. Just over one in five deacon candidates in formation programs (22 percent) are Hispanic/Latino. Asians/Pacific Islanders comprise 4 percent of deacon candidates and blacks/African Americans comprise 2 percent. Native Americans, multi-racial, and other ethnicities make up another 1 percent.

Educational Attainment

More than eight in ten deacon candidates (82 percent) have at least some college education. Two in five (40 percent) have a bachelor's degree and more than a quarter (27 percent) have a graduate degree. One in six (18 percent) has a high school education or less.

Lay Ecclesial Ministry Formation

In 2005, the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops adopted Co-Workers in the Vineyard of the Lord: A Resource for Guiding the Development of Lay Ecclesial Ministry. In that document, the bishops note that they have been using the terminology of lay ecclesial minister and lay ecclesial ministry since 1980 in Called and Gifted: The American Catholic Laity.

In Co-Workers, the USCCB describes lay ecclesial ministry as characterized by:

- Authorization of the hierarchy to serve publicly in the local church
- Leadership in a particular area of ministry
- Close mutual collaboration with the pastoral ministry of bishops, priests, and deacons
- Preparation and formation appropriate to the level of responsibilities assigned to them

Lay ecclesial minister is intended to be a generic term, not a specific role description or title. Co-Workers states that the ministry is lay “because it is service done by lay persons [including vowed religious]. The Sacramental basis [for lay ecclesial ministry] is the Sacraments of Initiation, not the Sacrament of Ordination.” It is ecclesial “because it has a place within the community of the Church, whose communion and mission it serves, and because it is submitted to the discernment, authorization, and supervision of the hierarchy.” It is ministry “because it is a participation in the threefold ministry of Christ who is priest, prophet and king.”

The longest section of Co-Workers is on formation for lay ecclesial ministry. It begins by noting that the Church has always required proper preparation of those who exercise a ministry: it cites Canon 231, which states that “lay persons who devote themselves permanently or temporarily to some special service of the Church are obliged to acquire the appropriate formation which is required to fulfill their function properly.” This section of the Ministry Formation Directory documents the development of such formation programs for lay persons in the United States.

Trends

In 1986, the USCCB Committee on the Laity completed the first nationwide study of formation programs designed to prepare lay Catholics for parish-level church ministry. CARA has been conducting studies of lay ministry formation programs nearly every year since 1994. As it has in each of its previous studies, CARA limits the scope of its survey to programs of at least two years’ duration that provide training for professional lay ecclesial ministry.

The role of the laity and their participation in the ministry of the Church has evolved considerably in the decades since the Second Vatican Council. At the same time, the number of formation programs to train lay people for professional church ministry has increased, and many programs have expanded their scope. Since the first study of lay ministry formation in 1985-1986, the number of programs has increased by more than 50 percent, and the number of participants in these programs has grown more than threefold.

Beginning in 2003-2004, CARA collaborated with the USCCB to improve the data collection so that participants in ministry formation programs who are preparing themselves for lay ecclesial ministry can be differentiated more accurately from those who are participating in these programs primarily for adult faith formation. Since that time, CARA now asks programs to identify degree candidates and certificate candidates separately, rather than asking only for the total number enrolled in the program. In addition, CARA asks each program to identify more clearly its affiliation with a degree-granting institution, where appropriate. While adult faith formation is vitally important for the Church, the purpose of this part of the Directory is to provide a complete list and to monitor trends among the programs that prepare adults for lay ecclesial ministry in the Church.

Reported enrollment in lay ecclesial ministry formation programs has fluctuated over the 30 years that the data have been collected. This fluctuation in numbers is partly a function of CARA's work with the USCCB to distinguish more carefully lay ecclesial ministry formation from adult faith formation, as described above. The largest number reported in formation was in 2002-2003, when a record 36,048 total participants were identified.

A second reason for the fluctuation is that the number of active programs offering formation in lay ecclesial ministry has also varied widely. CARA works throughout the year to identify new programs that have not been previously listed in the Directory and to clarify the status of other programs that have been discontinued or that did not respond to the survey. In 2015-2016, CARA identified a total of 211 active lay ecclesial ministry formation programs and received program information from 184 active programs, for a response of 87 percent. The 184 responding programs in 2015-2016 is a decrease of 2 percent from the 187 active programs that responded in 2014-2015.

Among the directors of the 184 active programs that responded to repeated requests for information, 15 supplied program information but did not provide any information on their enrollment. The information provided in the table below does not include the participants enrolled in those 15 programs.

The total number of lay ecclesial ministry candidates enrolled in degree and certificate programs in 2015-2016 is 23,681, of which 18,519 (78 percent) are working toward a certificate in ministry and 5,256 (22 percent) are working toward a graduate degree in ministry. The total number of enrollees represents an increase of 6 percent from the 22,145 candidates reported in 2014-2015.

Program Profile

A number of different types of lay ecclesial ministry formation programs offer either a degree or a certificate in a ministry-related field. CARA asked program directors to classify their program into one of four categories, according to the program’s relationship with a degree-granting institution. The figure at right shows the proportion of programs that place themselves in each of the four categories. Slightly less than half (46 percent) of all responding programs offer a certificate but no degree.

This table presents the average number of faculty and students in these four types of programs.

Lay Ecclesial Ministry Programs, 2015-2016
Type of Program	Average Number of Faculty		Average Number of Program Participants
	Full-time	Part-time	Degree	Certificate
Degree Program associated with a Catholic Seminary or School of Theology – no certificates	10	8	49	—
Degree Program associated with a Catholic College or University – no certificates	13	8	76	—
Combined Degree and Certificate Program	6	10	48	124
Certificate Program only – no degrees	1	19	—	146

Many lay ecclesial ministry formation programs can be classified as either exclusively diocesan-based or academic-based, but several are the result of collaboration between a diocese and an academic institution. In these cases, often the diocese assumes responsibility for the human, spiritual, and pastoral formation, while the academic institution is responsible for the intellectual formation. Currently, 101 active programs are sponsored or co-sponsored by a diocese, 53 are sponsored or co-sponsored by a Catholic college or university, and 15 are sponsored or co-sponsored by a seminary or school of theology. Loyola University in New Orleans operates 21 active programs that are both diocesan-sponsored and university-affiliated through the Loyola Institute for Ministry. CARA received program information from ten of these programs in 2015-2016.

In addition to academic and diocesan-based programs, a few independent Catholic organizations sponsor several other programs. Another 11 independent programs in clinical pastoral education (CPE) are offered by Catholic hospitals to train ministers who serve as chaplains in medical settings.

Some programs are designed to meet particular needs in lay ecclesial ministry formation, including several programs designed specifically for ministry with and to the Hispanic community (such as the Escuela de Ministerios Pastorales of the Diocese of Oakland), one program designed for ministry formation in the African American community (the Institute for Black Catholic Studies in New Orleans, LA), and one program, offered by the National Association of Pastoral Musicians, which prepares pastoral musicians for certification as a Director of Music Ministries. Another program, the Master of Science in Church Management at Villanova University, is designed to prepare those who are in church leadership and administrative roles who are seeking to become better stewards of church resources by improving their business and management skills.

Degrees and Certificates Offered

Academic-based programs offer academic degrees but many also offer certificates. Similarly, diocesan-based programs affiliated with a seminary, college, or university typically offer opportunities for both academic degrees and certificates. Programs that are exclusively diocesan-sponsored typically offer only non-degree certificates.

Most of the degree-granting programs offer graduate degrees, although a few also grant associate or baccalaureate degrees. The most commonly offered graduate degrees in degree-granting lay ministry programs are the M.A. in Pastoral Studies or Pastoral Ministry (52 programs), the M.A. in Theology, Theological Studies, or Pastoral Theology (45 programs), the M.A. in Religious Education (22 programs), the Masters in Divinity (18 programs), the M.A. in Religious Studies (13 programs), and the Doctor of Ministry (9 programs).

Degrees Available in Lay Ecclesial Ministry, 2015-2016
Type of Degree	Number of Programs
M.A. in Pastoral Studies or Pastoral Ministry	52
M.A. in Theology, Theological Studies, Pastoral Theology	45

Distance Learning and Online Coursework

In addition to the extension programs described earlier, a number of programs are being developed to take advantage of the Internet as a tool for expanding their reach to a wider audience. Several programs offer some coursework online and a few offer their entire program online. Thirty-three programs report that their certificate program can be completed online and 28 programs report that they have a degree program that can be completed online. The figure at right shows the proportion of programs that report offering some part of their program online.

Language of Instruction

Lay ecclesial ministry formation programs are conducted in a variety of languages. Nearly all use English as the primary language of instruction, but nine programs are taught only in Spanish, 50 use both English and Spanish, and two more make some accommodation for use of Spanish. In addition, one program uses English, Spanish, and Haitian Creole; another uses English, Spanish, Vietnamese, and Korean; and a third uses English, Spanish, Portuguese, and Brazilian.

Spiritual Formation and Field Education

Although academic formation is indispensable to lay ecclesial ministry formation, human, spiritual, and pastoral formation are also essential components of formation for ministry. Overall, among the 184 responding active programs slightly less than half (49 percent) say that formal spiritual formation is required of program participants. The same number (49 percent) report that the program includes a field education/internship requirement. Fewer programs (34 percent) require both. The table below separates the programs by type and displays the proportion within each type of program that require a spiritual formation component as well as the proportion that require a component of field education/internship.

Type of Program	Percentage of Programs Requiring
	Spiritual Formation Component	Field Education/Internship
Degree Program associated with a Catholic Seminary or School of Theology – no certificates	67%	75%
Degree Program associated with a Catholic College or University – no certificates	21	50
Combined Degree and Certificate Program	61	53
Certificate Program only – no degrees	47	48

Size of Program

Fourteen programs report more than 100 degree candidates enrolled in 2015-2016. The 2,873 degree candidates enrolled in these programs are more than half (56 percent) of all degree candidates enrolled in reporting programs. These 14 programs also report 259 students working toward a certificate (1 percent of all certificate candidates reported).

Profile of Lay Ecclesial Ministry Program Participants

To reflect more accurately the lay composition of these programs, CARA asked program directors to exclude any priests and deacons from their reported statistics about program participants. About three in five lay program participants (62 percent) are women (including women religious).

The figure at right displays all lay participants in these lay ecclesial ministry programs according to their ecclesial status.

Men religious are more likely to be enrolled in degree programs than to be enrolled in certificate programs while women religious are enrolled equally in both degree and certificate programs. Lay women who are not members of a religious institute are three times as likely to be enrolled in a certificate program as in a degree program. Lay women who are enrolled in a degree program make up 16 percent and lay women enrolled in a certificate program make up 45 percent of all lay ecclesial ministry program participants. Lay men are twice as likely to be enrolled in a certificate program (25 percent of all lay ecclesial ministry program participants) than in a degree program (11 percent).

Age Distribution of Lay Ecclesial Ministry Program Participants

Six in ten students in lay ecclesial ministry formation programs (62 percent) are in their forties and fifties. Three in ten are under the age of 40 and about one in ten (11 percent) are age 60 and older.

Students enrolled in degree programs are typically somewhat younger than those enrolled in certificate programs. Four in ten degree program enrollees (41 percent) are under age 40, compared to 21 percent of certificate program enrollees. About 12 percent of degree program enrollees are age 60 and older, compared to 10 percent of certificate students who are 60 or older.

Racial and Ethnic Backgrounds of Lay Ecclesial Ministry Program Participants

Hispanics/Latinos make up more than half (53 percent) of participants in lay ecclesial ministry formation programs. White/Anglo/ Caucasian participants make up a little more than four in ten (43 percent). Blacks/African Americans make up another 3 percent while Asian/Pacific Islanders make up 2 percent. Others (including Native Americans) also make up 3 percent of enrollees in these programs.

Hispanics/Latinos comprise just over half (53 percent) of the total lay ecclesial ministry program participants but are disproportionately enrolled in certificate programs. Hispanics/Latinos make up 14 percent of students enrolled in degree programs and 69 percent of students enrolled in certificate programs. In contrast, whites/Anglos/Caucasians make up 43 percent of the lay ecclesial ministry program participants but comprise 68 percent of degree candidates and 27 percent of certificate candidates. Blacks/African Americans, Asians/Pacific Islanders and other racial/ethnic groups comprise less than 10 percent of students in degree and certificate programs.
